PREFACE.

In presenting to my friends and customers a Catalogue of the articles for sale at my Emporium, I shall endeavor to make it valuable, not only to my regular patrons, but to all who may contemplate becoming such.

Many of our own city people are wholly unaware of the extent and variety of my stock of goods, embracing as it does, almost everything in the HOUSE FURNISHING line, while a knowledge of my facilities for Importing, Manufacting, &c., is not fully understood by the trade.

My establishment occupies the whole of the new four story brick building, corner of Broad and Eddy streets, and is divided into several departments for Stoves, Crockery, Furniture, Carpeting and Wooden Ware, each suitably arranged and connected, together with the rear buildings of equal extent for Storage, Packing and Shipping; thus I have the most ample accommodations for doing an extenstve business.

To the PURCHASING department I devote my especial attention, as I have for the last sixteen years; having acquired a thorough knowledge of the markets, and having business connections with some of the largest houses and every household, to which I shall add all those new and useful articles which an inventive genius is constantly bringing forth.

Thus I think I hazard nothing in saying that at no other place in this country can be found so complete and varied assortment of goods as at my Emporium.

The advantages of this establishment are at once apparent. To the new house-keeper, instead of visiting half a dozen stores for an out-fit, it can now be done at one place, greatly reducing the trouble and expense.

To the wholesale dealer the advantage is also great; beside buying at one profit and the advantage of having but one account, the actual saving of freight and cartage is not an inconsiderable item.

In conclusion, I beg to express my thanks to the public for their liberal support in times past, and solicit a continuance of the same, while to all who have not as yet been my customers I extend a most cordial invitation to visit my EMPORIUM.

B. P. CUNNINGHAM.

STOVES.

SAM'L JNO. TAUSLOW & CO. NEW YORK.
WATERS & SON

STOVES.

—o—

THE STOVE DEPARTMENT of this Establishment is second to no other in Rhode Island, containing an extensive variety of COOK, PARLOR, OFFICE AND SHOP STOVES, most of which are either manufactured by myself or experienced and well known parties, and of which I can speak with the fullest confidence.

My assortment of Cooking Stoves is varied, embracing some of the most improved patterns in the market.

It is evident that a great change has taken place in popular sentiment in regard to Stoves; the demand for those of the first quality having largely increased, while that for inferior ones has diminished; to meet this enlightened demand, after a series of careful experiments and thorough tests, by an ingenious combination of well known principles and new inventions, I have perfected a First Class COOKING STOVE, possessing in the highest possible degree, all the facilities for performing the culinary work of a family with the greatest convenience and dispatch, and in the best manner, and at the same time, economical in its consumption of fuel, durability of construction, simplicity in arrangement, compactness of form, of correct proportions and appropriate ornamental designs—such a Stove is the

PRIDE OF PROVIDENCE.

This Stove is designed for either wood, or coal, with a grate adapted to each.

For burning coal, the arrangement is admirable, with a swing grate, easily turned by a crank upon the outside.

The fire box is nearly oval, easily cleaned and retaining the fire a long time.

The connection of the fire to the baking and boiling department, is such as to secure the full effect of the fire, without lessening any of the heating qualities.

The ash pit is large and conveniently located, so as to remove the ashes and cinders without dust or dirt.

The oven is capacious, holding six large pies at a time, and baking with a uniformity and dispatch hitherto unknown.

Biscuit have been well baked in five minutes, and the relation of the oven to the fire is such that even two pans of bread have been baked in succession after he fire has been turned from the fire box.

The oven is constructed upon the principle of the old fashioned Tin Baker, long since out of date, to the regret of all lovers of good bread and well cooked meats,—the doors being lined with tin—which serve as a radiator, and prevents the escape of heat from the oven, which enables it to bake much quicker than the ordinary Stove.

For roasting meats, instead of confining them in a close oven, and impregnating them with its burnt fumes which spoils the flavor of the meat, this oven has an arrangement by which all the steam and oderous fumes are passed off, thereby giving it the same sweet and delicious flavor as when cooked in an old fashion tin-kitchen before the fire.

The broiling arrangement of this Stove is complete. By opening the small doors in front and placing the gridiron over the fire, the smoke and fumes which are a nuisance of long standing, are dispensed with.

One of the most valuable improvements possessed by this Stove, is a cut-off draft in the back of the Stove which admits of a current of cold air into the pipe thus preventing the escape of a large portion of hot air, thus effusing a larger portion of heat from the same quantity of fuel than any other Stove. Of these and the many other qualities posessed by this most desirable house-keeping companion, the public are referred to the numerous parties having them in use, as nearly one thousand are now in successful operation in this city and vicinity.

Of this Stove there are three sizes; accompanying each of which is a full set of ware, consisting of one copper-bottomed Wash Boiler, one Tea Kettle, one Dinner Pot, one Dish Kettle, one Spider, two Gridles, one Gridiron, one Flat-Heater, one Dripping Pan, two Bread Pans, two Pie Plates, one Dipper, one Scraper and one Cover Lifter.

THE PEACE MAKER,

FOR BOARDING HOUSES, HOTELS, ETC.

This Stove is on an entirely new and much improved plan. It occupies no more room than the ordinary Cooking Stove, while its capacity for cooking is at least one third greater. To the more prominent features and merits of which we invite the careful attention of the public, being fully satisfied that an examination cannot fail to convince the most incredulous that the Stove possesses all the qualities which should belong to one of the highest excellence.

This Stove presents a substantial and massive appearance. It is made of superior iron, and is in every respect finished in the highest style of mechanical skill.

The Ornrmental Design is plain and bold; and the mouldings are round and smooth, so as to prevent the accumulation of dust.

The prominent plates—those most exposed to the action of the fire—are of extra thickness and of durable form; and all the joints are filed and adjusted with great care and exactness.

Prominent among the leading features of the Peace Maker is the Roasting and Broiling Chamber, in which roasting can be done on a turn spit, directly before the fire, thus insuring to the articles being roasted their appropriate juicyness and flavor.

Broiling can be done over the live coals, without any fumes and gases escaping into the room.

The Baking Oven is large and is thoroughly ventilated by fresh hot air admitted between the fire chamber and the oven. The oven doors are all lined with Tin Plates, which serve to confine the heat.

The Fire Chamber is so constructed that all the heat is made immediately available to the roasting chamber, oven and boiler holes. The Fire Grate is of new and improved form, and is adapted equally well to the use of wood or coal.

There are six boiler holes of full size in the top of the Stove, in any of which boiling can be quickly done.

The Hot Water Reservoir is intended to occupy the two back boiler holes. It is not a permanent fixture, but can be located over any of the boiler holes, or be removed. Its cost is about half as much as a permanent copper reservoir.

The Peace Maker can be fitted with Hot Water Pipes, and adapted to all the uses of a Range, than any kind of which it is not only less expensive, but much more economical.

THE GEN. SCOTT.

This is a new and beautiful Stove just completed, which combines all the merits and improvements of a modern first class Cook Stove.

It has a good oven and is a quick baker. The castings are heavy and smooth. It is manufactured in this vicinity and under the supervision of parties of large experience.

An examination of this Stove is solicited from all who contemplate purchasing.

THE FANCY.

This is one of the prettiest little stoves in the world and is just the thing for a small family.

It has a most excellent draught, the hearth being low and the distance between it and the grate such as to allow the ashes to fall without clogging, or otherwise preventing the free admission of fresh air.

The grate is upon an entirely new plan, being concave, and revolving, though always remaining in a proper position.

The fire passes around the oven, which circuit is about one half the distance of that in ordinary stoves, causing it to bake with great uniformity and dispatch.

There are three sizes of these stoves—6, 7 and 8 inch.

THE COOK'S FAVORITE

Is, as its name indicates, a great favorite with housekeeper, judging from the universal satisfaction which this Stove has given, it can but be spoken of in the highest praise.

Although this Stove is sold at a low price, it has proved itself to be as valuable as others more expensive.

Of this there are three sizes—6, 7 and 8 inch.

THE COMPANION.

A Coal Stove of new and beautiful design, equally adapted to Anthracite or Bituminous Coal. We would call particular attention to the arrangement of the grate. It is a basket grate, from 1½ to 2 inches deeper in the centre than at the sides, thus giving an additional depth to the fire chamber. The dumping arrangement is of the most perfect kind, and we sell it with or without an ash drawer. With the drawer, the ashes can be removed without making any dirt in the room. For neatness and economy, it cannot be surpassed. The oven is extra large, and cannot fail to bake in the most satisfactory manner.

Three sizes, for coal—Nos. 7, 8 and 9.

THE TRIUMPH PARLOR COOK STOVE.

Great difficulty has heretofore been experienced in constructing a Stove adapted for the parlor and sitting-room, and at the same time, capable of being used for cooking purposes. Most of the attempts, thus far, have proved failures. But the unprecedented large sale of these Stoves, for the last eight years, together with the high terms of praise which they have received from those having them in use, firmly establishes the truth of their merits. These Stoves have a good oven, two boiler holes, and an ornamental top, which can be removed at pleasure. There are two sizes—7 and 8 inch.

THE COSMOPOLITE.

[See Cut, page 90.]

This valuable Stove is offered to the public as a grand combination of scientific principles, for burning coal and its gases, and the effusion of the greatest amount of heat from the smallest quantity of fuel.

It was first introduced in 1860, and judging from the testimonies of the large number of persons who have used them, there can be no hesitation in pronouncing it one of the best Stoves in America.

In beauty of design, economy and cleanliness, the COSMOPOLITE has no superior.

It is so constructed as to consume all the gas, thereby producing one-third additional heat.

The beauty of this Stove is its elegant design and large transparent door, through which may be seen the gases burning in streams of brilliant fire.

The admission of a current of cold air, at the pipe, preventing the escape of a large portion of heat is one of the improvements of this Stove.

Many Stoves fail to operate well, owing to faulty chimneys, but the place is yet to be found where this Stove will not have sufficient draught.

There are four sizes—9, 10, 12 and 14 inch.

THE UNION OPEN GRATE.

Has, for many years, been a great favorite. By removing the blower in front, the whole fire can be seen, as from the old-fashioned fire-place, rendering it one of the most cheerful sitting-room Stoves in the world. Nos. 1, 2 and 3.

PYRAMID STOVES.

FOR STORES, HALLS, ETC.

These Stoves have been in use many years, and for heating large rooms have no superior. They retain the fire sometimes a whole season without rekindling. Nos. 12, 14, 16 and 18 inch.

THE RENOWN.

This is a Sheet Iron Cylinder Stove, with an improved grate, by which the ashes cannot only be removed from the Stove while burning, but removed without dust or dirt. Nos. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14 and 16 inch.

CYLINDER STOVES, WITH FANCY BASE.

These Stoves are sold at a low price, and are well known as great heaters. Nos. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14 and 16.

SALAMANDER STOVE.

This is a Cast Iron Stove for Shops, etc., and is one of the oldest in use, and only needs to be supplied with coal to give out an abundant heat. Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

THE NOVELTY.

FOR WOOD.

This is an entirely new pattern, and judging from the principles of its construction, cannot fail to give full satisfaction. Persons in quest of a good wood Stove, are particularly invited to examine this.

WOOD AIR TIGHTS.

These Stoves need no recommendation, as they are sufficiently well known. The price is within the reach of all. Nos. 00, 0, 1 and 2.

BOX STOVES.

FOR BURNING WOOD FROM ONE TO THREE FEET IN LENGTH.

These Stoves have been in use many years and are valuable for Shops, etc. Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6.

SAD IRON HEATERS.

Combining the convenience of boiling Tea Kettle and heating six Sad Irons at the same time, and may be operated equally well with either Hard Coal, Charcoal, or Chips.

SUMMER RANGES.

These are valuable Stoves for Summer use; they require but little fuel, and give out but litle heat. 6, 7, 8 and 9 inch.

The foregoing Stoves are offered to the public with full confidence in their merit. In addition thereto can also be found the
